Westfield Town Council Candidates Address Referendum and Development During Forum

By LAUREN S. PASS
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

Topics at the 2003 Westfield Candidate Forum ranged from parking and development to pedestrian safety and property taxes.

First Ward candidates, Democrat Maureen Kehoe Rothfelder and Republican Peter Echausse began the forum on parking. Both candidates expressed their opposition to the Prospect and Elm Street location for the proposed parking deck.

Mrs. Rothfelder stated that she is opposed to the proposed development because of "increase in traffic...burden on schools (and) quality of life issues." She added that the town needs to take a "long, hard look at the actual needs of the community."

Councilman Echausse stated that he "will not allow this (the redevelopment projects) to be put on the backs of the taxpayers."

Second Ward Democrat candidate David Owens stressed that drivers must take personal responsibility in order to have more pedestrian safety.

Second Ward Republican candidate Jo Ann Neylan stated that people are speeding in their own neighborhoods and that more driver education is needed.

On the topic of public works services, Mrs. Neylan proposed her ideas for shared services with other towns for road repair, and sharing field maintenance costs with the Westfield Board of Education, as ways to improve services without increased spending.

Mr. Owens stated that he feels there is no system for road repairs, and that the order of when streets get repaired needs to be made more visible.

Mrs. Neylan responded that she thinks people are aware of the process and that innovative and new ideas are needed.

In addressing speeding issues, Third Ward Republican candidate

Mark Ciarrocca stated that there should be a citizens traffic safety advisory committee to help build on the town's current ideas.

Third Ward Democrat candidate David Haas stated that the council should look at which traffic-calming methods have and have not worked, and see what can be applied to areas in need.

On the issue of property taxes, Councilman Haas offered his support of a constitutional convention.

County Freeholders Announce "Project Lifesaver" Initiative

By MATT MARINO
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, in conjunction with Union County Sheriff Ralph Froehlich, announced the formation of an innovative rescue service for people suffering from Alzheimer's, autism and other such disorders.

The board also announced a new directive in regards to the upcoming elections.

Entitled "Project Lifesaver," the rescue service includes the use of small transmitters on wristbands that can be tracked both on the ground and in the air for several miles. Further, each transmitter is equipped with an original radio signal that is capable of broadcasting all day and all night. This system will enable the sheriff's office to track people who may be reported missing by their families, and ensure for a safe and quick rescue.

"With 'Project Lifesaver,' Union County families will have an important tool for keeping their loved ones - especially senior citizens and children who suffer from these and similar afflictions - safe from harm," noted Freeholder Chester Holmes.

The cost of each receiver is approximately $1,300, while wristband transmitters tally approximately $285 per transmitter. Batteries and maintenance total around $15 per month.

Sheriff Froehlich commented that with the ongoing development of the program, the county would make a request to various groups and civic organizations to assist families that might otherwise not be able to afford the transmitters.

"This program will save lives," stated Sheriff Froehlich. "'Project Lifesaver' can reduce the amount of time it takes to locate an individual from hours to minutes. When a loved one is lost, especially one who is suffering like this, time is critical."

Interested families may call the Sheriff's Office at (908) 527-4450.

In additional business, Union County Clerk Joanne Rajoppi announced that, regardless of the change in ballots in the 22nd District, Union County residents' right to vote would be preserved in full. The announcement was made with specific regard to both absentee ballots as well as military personnel who may be stationed overseas.

Ms. Rajoppi explained that all registered voters who submit absentee ballot applications, and who are out of state (due to business or military service, among other things), will receive absentee ballots via overnight mail. Voters who mail their ballots within a week of Tuesday, November 4, will also receive postage-paid overnight envelopes to return their ballots.

New WHS Parking Policy Examined By WF School Bd.

By ED COONEY
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

The Westfield Board of Education began finalizing plans for a student parking policy at Westfield High School (WHS) at its meeting on Tuesday.

Board members were shown a draft of a report from the Citizens Advisory Committee on Parking, which contains a tentative plan to solve the parking problem at WHS.

In the plan, parking will be limited to WHS students in their senior year who live outside of a one-half mile radius from the school. Early in the school year, parking congestion isn't a problem because only seniors are driving.

As the year progresses, students in their junior year begin receiving their driver's licenses and congestion around the school increases. It is estimated that two-thirds of the senior class will drive to school and that by the end of the year, one-third of the junior class will want the same privilege.

Board President Arlene Gardner said, "We are taking away the majority of the problem by limiting parking to seniors."

Parking would take place on streets near the high school selected by the town. In order to avoid confusion, residents on those streets would be issued permits showing that they are permitted to park on the road.

Student representative Carolyn Harvaugh, who attended the meeting, was on the Citizens Advisory Committee on Parking as a student liaison. She raised the need for the board and the Westfield Town Council to move along and iron out a final policy.

"One thing I stress is that the policy must be implemented by January," said Ms. Harvaugh.

Her concern is that juniors who will have been driving for months by that time will not want to change their driving habits that far into the school year.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. William Foley said that juniors are still allowed to drive to school. "We're just limiting them from parking in the area immediately surrounding the high school."

Ms. Gardner stated concerns about alienating those seniors living within the one-half mile "no drive" radius. "I don't like that we're making a kind of second class of those students," she said.

Studies conducted by the Advisory Committee show that approximately 40 eligible students currently live in that radius, and that only one-third of them would opt to drive to school.

The board also discussed the system by which parking permits will be issued to students. According to the guidelines meted out by the Advisory Committee, the administration at WHS would be responsible for giving the Westfield Police Department a list of eligible seniors by June 30 of each year.

The parking permits would then be handed out by the town to the students. A proposed $100 fee would be charged to any eligible senior who wants a parking permit.

Revocation of the permit can occur due to a number of infractions. Any student convicted of a moving violation, substance abuse, or disorderly conduct would have his or her permit revoked by the police department. Furthermore, a student found to be in violation of WHS discipline

Freeholders

"No one will be denied the right to vote," said Ms. Rajoppi. "We will protect the voting rights of military personnel who are protecting our freedoms abroad. College students, business travelers and others who need absentee ballots will also receive them in time to vote."

Last week, Union County Superior Court Judge Edward Beglin, Jr. ruled that the Democratic Party could replace State Senator Joseph Suliga with Freeholder Nicholas Scutari. Similar to last year's Torricelli-Lautenberg ballot switch, this year's change came after the cut-off date for replacing candidates. Consequently, the ballots, which were already printed, had to be discarded.

According to Ms. Rajoppi, her office has begun printing updated ballots. The Freeholder board also introduced a resolution last week whereby the county will allow T-Mobile to construct a monopole cell tower located in Scotch Plains.

Scutari, Marks to Face Off On November Senate Ballot

By FRED ROSSI AND MICHAEL M. SHAPIRO
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

DISTRICT 22 -- A report in the Star-Ledger on September 24, 2003 sent shockwaves throughout New Jersey: respected freshman Democratic State Senator Joseph Suliga from the 22nd Legislative District was charged with sexually harassing a woman patron and "fighting" with security personnel in an alleged alcohol-induced incident at the Trump Marina Casino in Atlantic City.

Senator Suliga soon announced that he would enter an alcohol rehabilitation program and that he would not seek re-election.

After a meeting last Wednesday, Union County Freeholder Nicholas Scutari was chosen as the Democratic candidate for the State Senate seat.

Matters weren't quite yet settled as of yesterday afternoon regarding the November election ballot in the 22nd Legislative District where Republican State Senate nominee and Scotch Plains Mayor Martin Marks' attempt to keep way of true property tax reform and significant ethics guideline changes will not know what hit them."

He places reforming property taxes, creating fairness in state school aid allocations, and reforming elected office at the top of his priorities. To effectively deal with property taxes, "municipalities should be given flexibility in raising revenue for municipal services and public education." Mayor Marks contended.

On the subject of state aid to public schools, Mayor Marks believes that, "suburban schools are getting short-changed...30 special needs districts receive one-half of the billions of dollars of state aid allocated every year," and that, "greater oversight is needed to see that state aid is actually reaching the classroom," while "formulas need to be recalculated to ensure that suburban school districts are receiving their fair share..."

In addition, Mayor Marks would bar elected officials from holding dual offices because, "too many elected members of the Senate and the General

Mr. Scutari off the ballot is in the hands of the courts.

Mayor Marks appealed last Friday's decision by Union County Superior Court Judge Edward Beglin, Jr. that Democrats could replace Senator Suliga on the November 4 ballot with Mr. Scutari despite a state statute that mandates that candidates cannot be replaced less than 52 days prior to the election.

The Republicans' appeal for emergent relief was filed in Appellate Court on Tuesday. At press time on Wednesday afternoon, no decisions had been issued.

"It's wrong to let the Democrats continue to replace these candidates," Union County Republican Chairman Ron Frigerio told The Scotch Plains-Fanwood Times last Friday when discussing the appeal. "It's a violation of the law."

Before a few dozen supporters a week ago, Mayor Marks, joined by State Assembly running mate George Gore, Mr. Frigerio and Douglas Forrester, who lost to Frank Lautenberg in last year's U.S. Senate race, said that while it was tempting to describe himself as this year's victim of what he termed "Democrat skulduggery," the "real victims in all this are the rule of law, the reputation of our state and, most importantly, the voters of New Jersey and now the 22nd Legislative District for a second time in two years."

While wishing Senator Suliga the best in his rehabilitation effort, Mayor Marks said he felt Senator Suliga had withdrawn from the race not for health reasons, but because "his internal polls showed that he was about to lose what was once considered a safe Democrat seat."

He called Freeholder Scutari "Joe Suliga's handpicked successor" and criticized Linden Democrat Mayor John Gregorio for remarks to the effect that the 22nd District Senate seat belonged to someone from Linden.

"Mayor Gregorio, I have got news for you," Mayor Marks said last week. "This senate seat does not belong to you or anyone else in Linden."

Now, with less than a month to go before November's election, the race for the State Senate is anyone's to win, and both Freeholder Scutari and Mayor Marks are actively seeking support.

Mayor Marks sees his candidacy as "...a legitimate attempt to change our way of thinking down in Trenton even if it means ruffling a few feathers along the way," and promises that if the voters of the 22nd District send him to the State Senate, "those who stand in the Assembly hold municipal or county elected positions," which, in Marks' view, can be a conflict of interest.

Freeholder Scutari, who served on the Linden Board of Education, is a seven-year veteran of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, a municipal prosecutor and a certified civil trial attorney, believes that his collective experiences will help him to best serve the public. Mr. Scutari's top priority is effectively dealing with property taxes. He would support a constitutional convention to discuss and analyze the tax structure in New Jersey, if it is done honestly.

"Economic development and continued growth of our business community is an integral part of the equation," Freeholder Scutari stated. Another important issue for Mr. Scutari is confronting the growing problem of congestion on New Jersey roadways: "planned growth and municipal involvement is extremely important. Anyone who has lost countless hours sitting in traffic knows it," said Freeholder Scutari. He cautioned that, "the problem will only get worse as our population grows and our infrastructure ages."

Asked about his feelings regarding running for the State Senate, Mr. Scutari stated, "I am looking forward to the challenge and I think it will give me an opportunity to address more broad-based issues of our community."

On the subject of Senator Suliga and the replacement of the Senator on the ballot, Mayor Marks expressed frustration: "If the judicial system allows this deliberate end around what is a clearly defined state law prohibiting a switch of candidates after the 48-day pre-election deadline, it will be the second year in a row that the Democrat machine has been allowed to do so."

Mayor Marks believes that, "these types of shenanigans will anger the voters of this district...which can only benefit my prospects of success," and has announced he will appeal the court's ruling.

Freeholder Scutari, however, believes that the court decided the case based on precedent and that in the end, the court rightly decided that, "voters deserve a choice in the election."

Promising a vigorous campaign on the issues, Freeholder Scutari said he is "really encouraged by the support" he has received from my "friends, family and the residents of the 22nd District."

Referendum, Development Addressed by Candidates

He suggested that the council should formulate an idea of what the increase should be each year and work the budget from there. He added that he was the only council member that voted against the budget this year.

Mr. Ciarrocca stated that, in order to remain diverse, the town must maintain its senior citizen population. He said that shared services and public/private partnerships should be looked into to help with costs.

Fourth Ward Democrat candidate Susan Jacobson added that the council must do something to help senior citizens. She suggested that the council should lower municipal fees, such as for the Conservation Center, for seniors. She also said that she is trying to get information to seniors on how they can get help with their property taxes.

Fourth Ward Republican candidate James Foerst responded that senior citizens are an integral part of the community and that their savings are being eaten up by property taxes, adding that the council needs to be fiscally responsible. Mr. Foerst said that the town should increase the role of seniors, as they are an "untapped resource."

Regarding development, Mr. Foerst stated that the Board of Adjustment and Planning Board are "creatures of statute." He said that the council must create stricter ordinances to control growth and decrease the size of new construction.

Mrs. Jacobson responded that developers are buying up every "piece of green" in town, adding that the Laws and Rules Committee is currently looking at ways to pass height restrictions.

On the subject of downtown Westfield, Mr. Echausse and Mrs. Rothfelder praised the Downtown Westfield Corporation for their work in balancing chains and "mom and pop" stores.

Mrs. Rothfelder stated that the town does need to "be mindful" to keep the smaller stores involved in local events.

In her vision for Westfield's future, Mrs. Neylan stated that she would like to keep Westfield "the way it is" while keeping "up with the times." She said that the town should retain its charm and keep architectural integrity.

Mr. Owens stated that "change is inevitable" and that a system of town-wide and ward meetings could help manage the changes.

He also commented on town communications, stating that council members need to be responsive and that "communications are never sufficient."

Mrs. Neylan stated that there is the town website, TV-36, and that the town is equipped with a reverse 9-1-1 system. She added that the Town Hall meetings are the backbone in the communication system, and pledged to be responsive and available if elected.

On the issue of referendums in regard to the proposed redevelopment plans, Mr. Haas stated that "in general, it is reasonable" for the town to bond items without going to voter referendum. He added that when the impact is substantial, then a referendum is appropriate. He said that if the council is firm in its support of the idea, it should be able to convince the public.

Mr. Ciarrocca stated that with the redevelopment proposals it would be difficult to frame a question. He said that he would like to see the process continue to be open, and that public comment is informative to the town and the developer.

Mr. Haas countered that at the end of the process, a very specific proposal could be put to a referendum.

Responding to a question regarding the allocation of police resources, and the number of parking tickets being written in the downtown, Mr. Ciarrocca said that the number of police calls are "staggering." He said that officers should be enforcing traffic safety.

Mr. Haas said that he doesn't think the purpose of writing a large number of parking tickets is to drive the redevelopment projects. He stated that enforcement was one of the issues highlighted by the parking advisory committee, adding that the ticketing is not being done by those who can patrol the streets.

Regarding freight train traffic at the Rahway Avenue crossing, Mr. Foerst said that transport on the railway is safer than having the materials transported on the roadways. He said that the Secretary of Transportation is set to sign a new group of regulations at the end of the year that will give the town the ability to construct a blockade that will give residents relief from the train whistle.

Mrs. Jacobson stated that Speaker of the House, J. Dennis Hastert, is opposed to the new regulations, but that the train whistle noise is a quality of life issue.

Finally, on the issue of an artificial turf field, Mrs. Jacobson said that the costs need to be weighed and that she doesn't think the Conservation Center is the ideal site.

Mr. Foerst stated his support of the use of artificial turf fields.

ary policy by the high school principal may lose his or her parking eligibility.

The high school administration would inform the police department, which would proceed to revoke the student's driving privileges.

"I think it is significant that the board and the township be seen cooperating to resolve this issue," said Dr. Foley.

"Parking is a privilege based on distance from Westfield High School and adherence to the code of conduct. It is not a right," said board member William Ziff.

Dr. Foley stressed that revocation of parking privileges will not be used as a disciplinary tool.

The board touched briefly upon the possibility of installing a turf field at one of the district's schools as part of a joint venture with the town.

Ms. Gardner asked the board if it would like the members of the Facilities Committee to begin gathering background information on the costs and feasibility of such a project.

Dr. Foley stated that he would "rather have a meeting about general budget priorities" than deal with the possibility of a large "capital project" like a turf field.

Board member Richard Solomon agreed, stating, "Part of the process of establishing priorities is knowing our alternatives."

Ms. Gardner replied, "We have only agreed to look into what might be the value and the cost" of such a project.

After discussion, it was decided that Dr. Foley and Business Administrator/Board Secretary Robert Berman would take the lead in gathering the pertinent information.

Ms. Gardner also discussed the ramifications of the town's Redevelopment Project. In order to pay for the proposed parking deck construction, residents in designated areas of Westfield would become part of a Payment In Lieu Of Taxes (PILOT) program. These residents would instead see their taxes go to the municipality to pay for the construction, bypassing the school district.

Ms. Gardner reported that there was a tentative agreement made with the town, in principle only, that the Westfield school district would be reimbursed for "additional students who come to the school system as a result of new condominiums or rentals."

The board approved new policy for handling emergency evacuations of schools in the district in case of fires, bomb threats, natural disasters, and man-made catastrophes. The policy calls for direct notification of each pupil's parents or guardian before the pupil is released.

The board also approved new Thorough and Effective Teaching Initiatives for all the schools in the district. These objectives include the reduction of bullying and plagiarism at the intermediate level and an increased proficiency in public speaking at WHS.
