

'Cost of Education' Report Criticized at State Hearing

By KATIE NEWINGHAM
Specially Written for The Scotch Plains-Fanwood Times

UNION — The New Jersey Department of Education's recently released report on the Cost of Education and its plans to change the formula for calculating state education aid were the subject of a public hearing Tuesday at Kean University.

The report states that its purpose is "to calculate the costs that New Jersey school districts face in meeting state performance and accountability standards." The 98-page report intends to address a per-student base cost and focuses on adjusting the base cost to reflect the needs of special-needs students.

The Professional Judgment Panel (PJP) created a table to identify median base cost and added costs in New Jersey schools. The piece of the report causing backlash from school districts throughout the state is found on page two, stating: "It is critical to note, however, that panelists only identified a set of resources to be used in a series of hypothetical school scenarios and did not specifically examine any existing school or district in the state. It is therefore not appropriate to suggest that any specific resources or programs identified by the panel should be applied in all New Jersey schools. Nor can the report be used to determine which portion of these resources should be paid for at the state or local level."

The panel included Lucille Davy, the New Jersey Commissioner of Education, Allen Dupree from the New Jersey Department of Education Division of Finance Office of School Funding and Justin Silverstein from Augenblick, Palach and Association, Inc. (an education consulting firm). A total of 27 speakers addressed the panel, including two broadcasted from the County College of Morris in Randolph.

Ms. Davy started the hearing by saying, "It is important for you to know that this is the first in a series of hearings...we're here to listen." She said there would be more hearings in the new year.

One of the main concerns for the majority of speakers at the hearing was how Abbott schools would be affected. The New Jersey Supreme Court case Abbott v. Burke resulted in requiring the legislature to provide equal funding; therefore, educating urban students at the same level as suburban districts. There are 31 Abbott schools in New Jersey with an estimated 320,000 students.

Rosie Grant from the Paterson Education Fund was the first speaker at the second hearing of the day. "I believe all New Jersey children should succeed" and they need the appropriate aid to do that, she said. "Those that have more get more in education in New Jersey...we need to make provisions for all children throughout New Jersey."

"The numbers cannot be trusted. These cookie-cutter examples are not based on real New Jersey students, schools, or communities...I ask you to conduct a realistic study," Ms. Grant said.

Richard Noonan, superintendent of Madison public schools, said "Common sense would be to look at actual experience before using a hypothetical model, which the report does not do." He added that the Madison schools are asking to stop using this report and embrace a new formula.

Assemblyman Joseph Cryan of Union questioned Ms. Davy directly about why the data in the report is from 2003, which she would not answer. Mr. Cryan objected to the 98-page report, which he deemed old and lacking real data. "I stand proud for Abbott...school funding needs to be for every kid in the state," he said.

Carl Kruger from Rutgers's Institute on Education Law and Policy said the Department of Education needs to start over and that there are available models throughout the state.

Donna Jackson, representing the United Parent Network, said: "I'm gonna fight for all children, no matter where they're from." "Stop playing black versus white and urban versus suburban...the bottom line is we're dealing with this thing from (idiocy)," she said.

Raymond Bandlow, Superintendent of Hillside public schools said, "The problem is not spending, it's funding...money has been frozen for years from all districts besides Abbott's...wealthy districts can go to property taxes, [but Hillside] can't."

"For the school districts designated as Abbott districts...it is a battle about the State of New Jersey's investment in the future," said Ronald Lee the school business administrator for the Newark Public Schools. "It is a battle that pits suburbs against cities, community against community and taxpayer against taxpayer, in a state that is reported to be the highest per-capita income and the second most segregated in the nation."

"The recommendations, as presented in the reports on 'Public School Funding Reform' and 'Cost of Education,' will significantly reduce aid to Abbott Districts and do not address the particularized needs of students in New Jersey's high poverty, high minority urban schools as mandated by the New Jersey Supreme Court rulings under Abbott v. Burke," Mr. Lee added.

Also present at the second hearing, was William Foley, superintendent of Westfield. "What doesn't the report tell us?" he questioned. "It does not provide a guide for a 'super' county superintendent to cut school district costs, nor does it offer a model for a county school district. It does not tell us what it costs to meet the New Jersey state standards; or how much it costs to teach a child to read...Means and medians, not to mention professional judgment panels, cannot account for the wide differences in actual expenditures and district needs."

"While I would like to hope that it will be the department's recommendation and ultimately the law that many more school districts will receive equalization aid, in fact this number has been shrinking. At least part of the reason for the steady rise in local property taxes has been state aid numbers that have been frozen for five years," he said.

"There is no shortage of ideas for providing an effective funding formula. What we have is a shortage of money...Certainly, the public wants to lower property taxes, but they do not want to lower school quality," Mr. Foley said.

Lorenzo Richardson from the Concerned Citizens Coalition and from the Jersey City schools, said "The only purpose of this report, other than being used for bathroom material, is to realize that this report was just thrown together" and not to cut the kids out because they are the future.

Archives from all three of the hearings can be found at www.njed.net or on the Department of Education's website, state.nj.us/education.

Sheriff, Surrogate, Clerk, Dept. Heads Get Raises

By PAUL J. PEYTON
Specially Written for The Scotch Plains-Fanwood Times

ELIZABETH — The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders approved salary increases Thursday night for county department heads, as well as for the county clerk, surrogate and sheriff.

The raises for department heads range from 2.75 to 4.88 percent. County Manager George Devaney's salary increased by $6,059 to $157,530. Deputy County Manager/Director of Administrative Services Elizabeth Genievich's new salary is $137,623, an increase of $5,293, while County Counsel Robert Barry received a $5,119 pay boost to $141,619.

Other salary raises are: Public Safety Director Harold Gibson, $113,793, up $4,000; Finance Director Larry Caroselli, $126,377, a hike of $4,375; Human Services Director Frank Guzzo, $123,801, a $4,378 increase; Parks, Recreation and Facilities Director Charles Sigmund, $116,946, up $3,130, and Director of Economic Development Al Faella, $107,375, a $5,000 increase.

Only Director of Engineering and Public Works (DPW) Joseph Graziano, earning $108,000, who joined the county over the summer, did not receive a raise. He replaced the retired Frank Dann, who was paid $116,357. Directors' increases are retroactive to January 2006.

Tina Renna of Cranford, president of the Union County Watchdog Association, said department directors should not have received raises because of the deaths of two inmates that occurred while they were incarcerated at the Union County jail.

"People are dead. You don't deserve raises," Mrs. Renna said.

She said the total administrative salaries for the Union County manager and deputy manager, prior to last week's increases, totaled $273,384 and were second only to Camden County, which totaled $513,550. New Jersey has 21 counties.

The freeholders approved 3.75-percent raises for County Clerk Joanne Rajoppi, County Surrogate James Lacorte and Sheriff Ralph Froehlich. Their salaries effective January 1, 2007 will be $138,505, a $14,500 increase from the start of 2005. The three officials received a 3.75-percent raise last December that was retroactive to January 1, 2005 and another 3.75-percent raise effective January 1 of this year.

The freeholders did not approve raises for themselves as they did last year and 2003. "Obviously, we don't give ourselves raises every year," Al Mirabella, freeholder chairman, said.

The board also approved a 4.5-percent raise for Freeholder Clerk Nichole DiRado, boosting her pay $3,712 to $86,000, an $11,000 increase since late 2004, when she was appointed to the post.

Bruce Paterson of Garwood said the freeholders need to bring "responsibility and accountability" to county government. He read a wrap-up of county government for the year called "Countdown to Disaster" which mentions a 5-percent increase in the county tax levy and the Motor Vehicle Commission investigation into Freeholder Angel Estrada for his role as Elizabeth DMV office manager for allowing former Attorney General Zulima Farber's boyfriend's license to be restored "without going through proper legal procedure."

Mr. Paterson also highlighted a sheriff's sale whereby Sheriff Froehlich's son "bought $150,000 worth of cars for $300" prior to a legal agreement to return the cars for the dealership's bid, a sexual harassment lawsuit against Freeholder Rick Proctor and a $2-million no-bid communications contract to Freeholder Debbie Scanlon's sister.

Mr. Mirabella said Mr. Paterson's comments sounded like a campaign speech, to which Mr. Paterson said he was "a resident who is watching what's going on in the county."

Mr. Mirabella responded, "You run for something every year."

In other business, Freeholders Mirabella and Dan Sullivan said legislation that would create a county administrative school district would not apply to Union County because it has two or more Abbott Districts. The Westfield Board of Education, feeding off information from the Garden State Coalition on Schools, said last week that they heard Union County would be the county in question.

"I think there has been a wild reaction (to the rumor)," Mr. Sullivan said.

Under the legislation, the county selected for the program would be run by a chief school administrator and include an appointed school board. All local superintendents and other school board administrators would be abolished. Local school boards would exist, but only in an advisory capacity.

The legislation, S-8/S-7/A-8, if passed, would require support by the local freeholder board.

Mr. Mirabella added that "it's a state issue...Union County couldn't even qualify as a county district."

"There is no talk (of a Union County Administrative School District) because there was no talk," Mr. Sullivan said.

The board approved contracts for This Is It! Concept and Event Productions of Hoboken to be the promoter for MusicFest, scheduled for September 15, at Nomahegan Park in Cranford at a cost of $198,800. The company will run the Kids Traveling Jubilee Tour, June 9, July 8, August 12 and September 15 at cost of $85,260, and the Rhythm and Blues by the Brook Festival on Saturday, June 9 at Cedar Brook Park in Plainfield, at cost of $98,900.

All Access Marketing and Publicity of Cranford received a $15,000 contract to market MusicFest.

Atkins Expresses 'Concern' About Cerami Indictment

By FRED T. ROSSI
Specially Written for The Scotch Plains-Fanwood Times

SCOTCH PLAINS — Township Manager Thomas Atkins said he is "concerned" about the indictment last week of public works director Charles Cerami, who was charged in Hunterdon County with keeping more than $200 from scrap metal sales during his tenure as public works director in Clinton Township.

Speaking to The Scotch Plains-Fanwood Times on Tuesday, Mr. Atkins said he "didn't have any idea that [the Dec. 12 indictment] was coming out."

Apparently, he added, neither did Mr. Cerami, who Mr. Atkins described as "stunned" when the indictment was first reported on December 13. Mr. Atkins said Mr. Cerami, who became township public works director in February, "is engaging, good, capable counsel so there can be a meeting with the Hunterdon County Prosecutor."

Mr. Cerami, who faces a maximum fine of $150,000, five to 10 years in jail or both, is scheduled to appear in Hunterdon County court in Flemington on Monday, January 8, to respond to the charges.

The township council discussed the situation in closed session prior to its meeting on Tuesday night. "I'm concerned about how he stands in Hunterdon County," Mr. Atkins said. "No one takes a grand jury indictment lightly."

The township manager said that since Mr. Cerami joined the township staff, he has "helped with the staff from an accountability and productivity standpoint."

Mr. Atkins said that "many people said to me in the spring that they noticed how the town hall property had been beautified" with new plantings and shrubs. "That was Charles' leadership."

He noted that 25 streets in Scotch Plains were successfully refurbished this year — a relatively high number, he said. "That was the department working together as a team."

According to police, this type of Internet scam is a fraud tactic and police urge residents to be aware of it. The buyer writes an international check for more than the asking price of an item and then asks the victim to return the overpayment, police said. Since an international check takes longer to clear, the suspects cash the reimbursement check and cancel payment on the original check. Captain R. Osieja urges residents to be aware of this type of fraud stating, "If it's too good to be true, it usually is."
