

ELECTED...Sherl Brand of Westfield will serve as an advocate on the national level in Washington, D.C., representing home care and hospice interests. Ms. Brand poses with President Bill Clinton.

Sherl Brand Elected Chair of the National Association For Home Care & Hospice Forum of State Associations

WASHINGTON, D.C. (January 15, 2010) - Val J. Halamandaris, President of the National Association for Home Care & Hospice (NAHC), announced today that Sherl Brand, RN, has been elected the new Chair of the NAHC Forum of State Associations. Brand was elected to a two-year term and will represent home care and hospice state associations on the NAHC Board of Directors. Brand's professional health care career includes wide-ranging experience in nursing, case management and home care. She currently serves as President and CEO of the Home Care Association of New Jersey, Inc. She also serves as the co-chair of the State of New Jersey's Medicaid Long Term Care Advisory Council, which focuses on the state's long term care rebalancing effort.

"Sherl's passion and proven service on behalf of nurses, therapists, aides and other health care providers, coupled with her astute understanding of legislative advocacy, cement my great pride in announcing her as the new Chair of the Forum of State Associations," said NAHC President Val J. Halamandaris. "I look forward to working closely with Sherl to give voice to the 12 million Americans who depend on home care services and the 78 million baby boomers who are nearing retirement age."

Throughout her career, Brand has been appointed to multiple industry and government committees and advisory groups as well as community organization boards. In 2000, she was named Member of the Year by the Home Care Association of New Jersey due to her strong leadership and advocacy in support of legislative changes needed for home care providers and the people they serve. This experience makes Brand an invaluable asset to state associations as they develop and grow into strong advocates. It also makes her uniquely qualified to serve as an advocate on the national level in Washington, D.C., representing home care and hospice interests before Congress and federal agencies.

"Virtually everyone knows someone who's living with a chronic medical condition and wants to stay in their own home while receiving treatment or someone who's progressing in age, but doesn't want to be uprooted from their home. In my new role as Chair of the Forum of State Associations, I'm prepared to fight for these people and for each American's right to home care and hospice," said Brand. "It's an honor to accept this position to advance such a worthy cause, one that I've spent my entire professional career supporting."

NAHC and its Forum of State Associations are made up of home care and hospice providers and associations from every state. Both have been at the forefront of the effort to craft a health care reform bill that both provides access to care for all Americans and recognizes the vital, cost-effective, role that Medicare home health plays in the overall health care system.

Earlier this year, NAHC and the Forum of State Associations launched a joint educational and advocacy campaign called Help Us Choose Home (www.HelpUsChooseHome.com) to help prevent the proposed cuts to Medicare home health services. Brand will play a leadership role in directing the future of this campaign.

The Home Care Association of NJ, founded in 1973, is a non-profit statewide trade association that represents and advocates for the full scope of home care (home health agencies and health care service firms) and hospice agencies. The Home Care Association of NJ fulfills its mission to serve as the catalyst for excellence in home care and hospice by providing information, education, assistance and advocacy for New Jersey's providers and the people they serve. For more information contact 732-877-1100 or visit <http://www.homecarenj.org>

NAHC is the nation's largest trade association representing the interests and concerns of home care agencies, hospices, home care aide organizations, and medical equipment suppliers. From professional development to fighting for better regulation, from knowing all angles of federal and state regulations to providing the latest information affecting home care and hospice, NAHC is dedicated to serving the needs of its members, enabling them to better serve their patients. Builder's-Remedy Lawsuit tion fees, escrow fees, inspection fees and legal fees, be waived for the developments.

Needle Point also alleged that the planning board has "failed to adopt a Fair Share Plan." The Fair Share document outlines how the town plans to meet its affordable-housing obligation from now through 2018. Mr. Gildea said the town does have a Fair Share plan, but it has not been approved due to the filing of the previous builder's-remedy lawsuit.

The plaintiff further alleged that the town adopted an "unauthorized, invalid and illegal" Growth Share Ordinance, pursuant to which it collected development fees from development in lieu of building affordable housing units.

Separately, in the first builder's-remedy lawsuit, Union County state Superior Court judge has dismissed with prejudice Sunnyside Senior Housing's claims for builder's remedy. Sunnyside alleged in early 2009 that the town's "unreasonable and onerous" zoning ordinances unfairly prevented it from constructing a proposed 60-unit development on Springfield Avenue, which was to have a component for low- and moderate-income housing. Other claims in the Sunnyside case are still active.

"The law was on our side with that piece of the case," Mr. Gildea said, referring to the builder's remedy.

The town council was to have approved a resolution Wednesday night, after press deadline, to re-engage Stuart Koenig and his Cedar Grove law firm for the continuation of the Sunnyside case and the Needle Point matter.

County to Help United Way Offset Fees for Haiti Effort

By SONIA OWCHARIW
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

ELIZABETH - Haiti is not alone after being struck by a 7.0 earthquake recently claiming thousands of lives, destroying homes and leaving the country in desperate need of water, food, shelter and medical care. The world is responding and Union County is answering the call as well.

Frank Guzzo, director of Human Services in Union County, requested at last Thursday's Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders' meeting to contract a fee not to exceed $5,000 to the United Way of Greater Union County in Elizabeth to offset administrative fees of processing monetary donations for Haiti. The United Way has been asked to be the lead agency for relief efforts.

Residents can check on county and state efforts for Haiti by visiting ucnj.org and nj4haiti.org.

In other business, Erick Torain, of Torain Group of Mullica Hill, and Shamida Coney, arts coordinator for Central Jersey Arts Charter School in Plainfield, requested that the Union County Improvement Authority be the "conduit issuer" for the tax-exempt bonds included in the $7-million budget. The charter school is a 501(c)3, nonprofit-exempt organization, according to Mr. Torain.

"There's no risk for the county since no county dollars are being budgeted," Freeholder Chairman Dan Sullivan said. The charter school hired the Torain Group to raise the $7 million through private investors. The school is looking to purchase and renovate the building at 1225 South Avenue in Plainfield. The existing building at 35 Watchung Avenue opened its doors in September 2006, and offers classes from kindergarten to fifth grade, and currently has 345 students with its first eighth-grade graduating class in June, according to Ms. Coney.

"We are a school that applies math with music and art with science suiting needs for our Plainfield students. For example, our kindergarten students learn the alphabet through physical movement. Mathematical fractions are learned through music patterns. Our teachers are licensed and highly-qualified according to the New Jersey Department of Education and our students take NJASK (New Jersey Assessment of Skills and Knowledge)," Ms. Coney said.

A board also considered agreements with the United States Department of Agriculture, Animal and Plant Inspection Services for managing the Canadian geese population throughout the Union County Parks System in an amount not to exceed $347,239. The freeholders also considered a resolution to enter into agreements with Scotch Plains and Westfield for participation in the Sheriff's Labor Assistance Program for labor assistance from non-violent prisoners.

Republican Party's nominee for governor in 2001, as education commissioner. Mr. Schundler is a 1977 graduate of Westfield High School, where he was All-State in football. Mr. Schundler later was elected to two terms as Jersey City mayor.

Governor Christie said the state needs to "make better use of the resources showered on education." He vowed that his administration "will hold schools accountable and give people the choice to pursue alternatives to schools that fail."

In addition to Mr. Christie's administration, Westfield residents Tom Kean, Jr. and Jon Bramnick both hold leadership posts in the Republican caucus in Trenton. Mr. Kean serves as Senate minority leader, while Mr. Bramnick is in the number two spot as conference leader for the GOP.

Mr. Bramnick said he expects the incoming governor to initiate his idea to conduct unannounced audits of state and local governments. "Where there is state funding and where the state has authority to enter the workplace, we are going to follow people around and ask, 'what are you doing now?'" he said.

Following the inauguration, invited guests headed to a reception at the Prudential Center in Newark, where Bruce Springsteen's "Glorious Days" filled the air from The B Street Band, a cover band. The event, which replaced the traditional inaugural ball due to the struggling economy, featured sections of Jersey's favorite foods such as taffy and fudge from Atlantic City, Campbell's soup from Camden County and the traditional pork roll from Trenton. All proceeds went to charity, according to Governor Christie, such as $100,000 to the Community Food Bank of New Jersey in Hillside.

One attendee, John DeSimone of Clark, said of the new governor, "Do what you say, we are all behind you."

mentation of the new system, will be funded through federal stimulus funds, which were granted to the district under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act in 2009.

The implementation, which includes training, is already underway, and will continue through October 2010, with the new program going live as of July 1, 2010.

During its meeting Tuesday night, the board also heard the fourth installment of the 2009-2010 budget overview, which provided a breakdown of technology spending. The total budget allocation for technology, excluding salary, benefits and related costs, is $640,325, which represents 0.8 percent of the $84,544,832 total operating budget.

Business Administrator Robert Berman told the board that of the district's 3,000 computers, which include desktops for classrooms, computer lab, libraries, and administration and guidance use, as well as a computer cart and teacher laptops, more than 50 percent are four years old or older and most of the computers are leased.

"When (the computers) come of lease we own them and owe nothing," Mr. Auker told the board. "Most of the computers are on four-year leases."

Of the $421,127 spent on computer leases, $198,779 is allocated to computers in the fourth year of the lease.

The total amount spent on operating costs, which encompass network and instruction supplies and materials, as well as equipment repair and Internet services, accounts for $219,198.

Mr. Berman also reported that due to restructuring of personnel spending for 2009-2010, which totals $637,669, there are four full-time technicians who service the district's entire computer and information technology needs. Additionally, the positions of superintendent of technology and chief technology officer were combined into one. Technology salaries, benefits and related costs are included in the administration's costs in the overall budget.

In response to board member Gary McCready's questioning if there had been a noticeable increase in lag time due to the reduction in technicians, Mr. Auker told the board that the decrease in personnel is "especially noticeable if someone is out."

"If (a technician) is sick for a few days it has a domino effect," Mr. Auker said.

The next BOE meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, January 26, at 8 p.m.

"We are looking forward to seeing what this (new governor and education commissioner) means," Ms. Schumacher said. "My concern... is that there would be such a drastic cut (in school funding) to New Jersey and Westfield." She said she hopes Westfield's school aid would be no less than flat over last year. Ms. Schumacher said funding cuts would likely mean cutting clubs and other programs for students.

Dominick Giordano, president of Scotch Plains-Fanwood Education Association (SPFEA), expressed his concerns over the incoming administration's position on education.

"In a troubled economy, public schools need as much support as possible to keep them great for our kids," he said. "The new administration supports new ideas that redirect the flow of monies for funding away from public schools [and] that poses very real concerns for the president of an association that represents the interests of public-education employees and, ultimately, wants to do the best for students."

Mr. Giordano said he sees a "tough road ahead" for public education in New Jersey. "Change is never easy," Mr. Giordano said. "Ultimately, we don't know what lies ahead."

When reporters asked Mr. Christie at a press conference what the appointment of Mr. Schundler as education commissioner signals to the NJEA, Mr. Christie responded, "I don't think the appointment of Bret Schundler sends any signal to the NJEA. The election of Chris Christie sends a message to the NJEA."

NJEA President Barbara Keshishian released a prepared statement on the NJEA website.

"Much of Mr. Schundler's experience is in other fields, and we are hopeful that, in this new position, he will listen to experienced, professional educators and work collaboratively with them as he makes decisions about the future of New Jersey's public schools," Ms. Keshishian said.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is expected to soon begin hearings on cabinet nominations, including Mr. Schundler. Senator Nicholas Scutari (LD-22, Linden) chairs the committee.
