

Students Wear Out Faculty; Gridders Get Rings

Sorrentino said, "We have some young pups of our own and some old crafty veterans. Nice mix for us. In the second half, they can expect more of the same. More fire more brimstone."

Senior student Morgan Miller commented, "I think we did well; we just need to get back on defense, because the teachers had the majority of their points on fast breaks."

In the third quarter, the student machine dug in to deny their opponent the nomination. While the faculty's 3-point volleys missed the target, the students seized possession and won the quarter, 15-9.

Trailing, 51-45, the students poured on the youth to wear out the fading faculty. Miller (1,000-point career scorer) pumped in back-to-back 3-point bombs that broke the faculty's will. The students ruled the quarter, 21-9, and occupied the winners' spot, breaking up a five-year faculty reign. The series record however still favors the faculty 9-6.

"We had a lot of excitement and a lot of energy. Miller however came in there and sunk two three's for them. They took that momentum and kept going. We had a mix of teachers from all departments, all areas of the school, and it's great to come together and share. It's a great tradition and everyone gets the credit for it. It's lots of fun," said girls soccer coach Jen Michewicz.

"You saw the moves out there. I was very close to dunking a few times. I'm as smooth as any basketball player out there, although I spent most of my time on the mat. This is a sport that anyone can pick up. You need a hoop and a ball or just nail a basket to a telephone pole. But that right there would be a warm-up for our [wrestling] team. This would not even be a sweat for our kids. You saw the dunk, I was very close, boasted wrestling Head Coach Pat Gorman.
