Franklin students helped paint the dazzling mural that now lines the entrance vestibule and main hallway of the school under the guidance of Caren Frost Olmsted during a recent artist-in-residency program.

Franklin School Paints Historic Mural in Its Halls

WESTFIELD — Franklin School students, staff and parents recently spent several weeks painting with local artist Caren Frost Olmsted of Morris Arts to create a one-of-a-kind mural that encompasses the entrance and main hallway of the school building.

The floor-to-ceiling art not only pays tribute to Franklin School, but to many of Westfield's historic landmarks such as the gazebo in Mindowaskin Park, the train station, the Presbyterian Church, the North Avenue fire house, the Rialto movie theater and other iconic buildings downtown. The school's namesake himself, Benjamin Franklin, even makes an appearance with his trusty kite and a bolt of lightning along with his famous quote "Tell me and I forget, teach me and I remember, involve me and I learn."

Ms. Olmsted sketched her vision and then organized the painting process so that any and all Franklin students, staff and parents could participate. The project was funded by the Franklin PTO, and the result is a stunning collaboration that will resonate with the community for many years to come.

Artist's Digital Collages Cast a Spell on Viewers

SUMMIT — On Friday, July 22 the Visual Arts Center of New Jersey will open its newest exhibition, Jill Kerwick: Lipstick and Other Stories. Jill Kerwick's ingenious digital collages resemble film stills—part fantasy, part science fiction, and part fairy tale—featuring strangely serene female characters and giant animals in bucolic landscapes or domestic spaces. The New Jersey artist describes them as, "just real enough" to be believable—at least at first glance.

Ms. Kerwick assembles miniature stage sets by positioning antique lady head vases, live animals, grass, and foliage in front of paintings or backdrops. After photographing them she uses Photoshop to insert images of her body into the compositions. Her use of lady head vases for her female characters is an important signature element of the work and demonstrates Kerwick's interest in contrasting the natural with the artificial. Blurring the boundary between reality and fiction, these intriguing images surprise us, excite our imaginations, and invite us to construct our own fanciful stories.

An opening reception will be held on Friday, July 22 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. for Jill Kerwick: Lipstick and Other Stories as well as the Marylou Hillyer Members Show Juried Exhibition. The reception is a free event open to all.

Adult and children's group tours for this and the Art Center's other exhibitions are available throughout the year. Visit www.artcenternj.org for more information. Visit www.artcenternj.org for more information about these exhibitions and programs.

Twelve of the artists chosen will also be featured on the Arts Guild New Jersey website www.agnj.org as an "Artist of the Month" for one month each beginning in January 2017. The selected artists' monthly web page will feature a dozen images of their artwork, a statement and current exhibit resume. Each artist selected will also receive a free one-year listing on the "Artist Registry" (at ConnectionsForArt.com). The exhibition is open to all artists working in any media. Artists must be a minimum age of 18 to enter. Work must have been completed in the past five years, and may not have been exhibited previously at Arts Guild New Jersey. Judging will be conducted by Arts Guild New Jersey's Executive Director, Lawrence Cappiello as well as additional artist jurors, to be announced. All media will be considered for this exhibit, with the exception of crafts, such as jewelry, pottery and glass.

Interested artists can visit www.agnj.org to review the Prospectus, complete an online entry form and upload up to six images of recent work. Images uploaded for the judging process must be formatted and labeled as indicated in the Prospectus. There is a $20 entry processing fee which can be paid by credit card at the time of entering.

The deadline for submitting artwork is Friday, September 23. Submitting artists will be notified by Friday, November 18 on the status of their application, and the program will commence on the Arts Guild's website in January 2017. The order in which the 12 winning artists are presented does not reflect a particular rank. Winners are assigned to a month at the discretion of the judges.
