

no shame.

no blame.

no names.

now there's a safe haven for unwanted infants

1-877-839-2339

RECENT TRAGEDIES NEED NOT HAVE HAPPENED!

Union County Prosecutor Thomas V. Manahan and Union County Police Chiefs Association President Thomas O'Brien remind all citizens of the existence of the Safe Haven Infant Protection Act. If you suspect that harm may be done to a newborn, please inform the infant's caregiver of this protective option.

Safe Haven Infant Protection Act
Anonymous Drop-off for Unwanted Infants

In New Jersey, the Safe Haven Infant Protection Act allows an individual to give up an unwanted infant with no fear of arrest or prosecution. No names or records are required. The parents, or someone acting on their behalf, can bring a baby less than 30 days old to any hospital emergency room or police station. The Division of Youth and Family Services will immediately take the child into custody and place the infant in a foster or pre-adoptive home.