children's education, and service to the school community. For the first time this year, at the request of the family, the award was doubled so that both an elementary and middle school teacher could be recognized for their teaching excellence. Mrs. Hoyer is a graduate of Kean University, who began her teaching career in Scotch Plains-Fanwood in 1989. Mrs. Williams, a graduate of Georgian Court College, has taught English at Park Middle School since 1970. Other teachers nominated this year for their professional excellence were elementary teachers Camille Berkowicz, Linda Bohlen, Marylynne Cartright, Grace Cooke, Paula Franko, Marcia Hack, Lisa Herbert, Teresa Joslyn, Carol Kiley, Joanne Maiuro, Michele Mottley, Laurel Muenzen, and Beth Risse. Middle school nominees also included Jonathan Bencivenga, Mary Lu Farrell, Faith Gordon, Ronald Mackenzie, Frances Marmora, and Rita Selesner.

The 2001 awards were announced during a recent reception in honor of the winners and all of this year's elementary and middle school teacher nominees. The Currie Award was established in memory of Joan Vagelos Currie, a local teacher who served the Scotch Plains-Fanwood Schools for 16 years. The award was endowed by Dr. P. Roy Vagelos, former Chief Executive Officer of Merck & Co., Inc., as a family tribute to his sister for her lifelong love of teaching, commitment to parental involvement in their children's education, and service to the school community.

Stephan Hoeckele Is Honored At SPBPA Spring Fling Dinner

SCOTCH PLAINS – The Scotch Plains Business and Professional Association (SPBPA) honored Stephan J. Hoeckele, President of BeCu Mfg. Co., at its Annual Spring Fling Dinner Dance May 11 with the organization's Special Recognition Award.
Mr. Hoeckele has been a board member of the SPBPA for the past four years and serves as its Treasurer. He has been Chairman of the Association's Car Show for the past five years and has made many contributions to the efforts of the SPBPA and to the betterment of the Scotch Plains community.
BeCu Mfg., founded by Mr. Hoeckele's grandfather, has been in business in Scotch Plains for 41 years.

The company manufactures parts for many large companies throughout the world. Parts manufactured by BeCu are on commercial jets, United States Army equipment, space shuttles and missile systems.
The firm recently received its ISO 9002 certification, which recognizes that the production and business process of the company meets the highest quality standards in industry.
The dinner is an annual event held by the SPBPA to raise money for its Scholarship Fund. This year, once again, the Association will award five, $1,000 scholarships to local high school graduates. For information about the SPBPA, please visit its website at www.visitscotchplains.com.
