Circuit Court's Decision on Pledge Draws Reaction from Politicians

"It is a preposterous decision that hopefully will be overturned by the Supreme Court; particularly in a time when patriotism is on the rise; this is not the time to undermine (which this does in many ways) the strong need for patriotism that our country has."

— Michael Ferguson,
Congressman (Seventh District)
(interview)

"I believe in God; I believe in my country; they can co-exist." "The country is drifting away from some moral things." "When you think about September 11...it just baffles my mind that the court would even touch an issue like this."

— Lewis Mingo, Jr.,
Union County Freeholder
Chairman (interview)

"I think we ought to take those judges and all the people who agree with them and send them to Afghanistan where they won't have to worry about it."

— Robert Vigilanti,
Mountainside Mayor
(interview)

"It should be noted that our wonderful country was founded by God-loving and God-fearing people on the premise that we are endowed with certain unalienable rights by our Creator. It specified in our Constitution that we shall enjoy a freedom of religion, not a freedom from religion, and I think this court's decision is liberalism run amok. I think our United States Supreme Court will overturn it, thankfully."

— Martin Marks,
Mayor of Scotch Plains
(interview)

Editor's Note: Following the decision by the Ninth Circuit Court to remove the words "under God" from the Pledge of Allegiance, which was followed by the decision that it could not be enforced. As this decision came the week before the Fourth of July, we thought our readers would like to know what their local and state representatives thoughts are.

"The Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals unfortunately today issued an opinion that violates a basic principle and value, which we share as Americans."

"The Declaration of Independence, as well as the Constitution, recognizes our respect and adherence to moral principles based in theology and faith."

"I would strongly support efforts to reverse this most unfortunate ruling."

— Governor Jim McGreevey
(press release statement)

"This is the kind of absurd judgment that undermines confidence in the judicial system. It is impossible to perceive how words can be ruled unconstitutional that the founding fathers used so many times in drawing up the Constitution."

— Robert Torricelli,
United States Senator
(press release statement)

"I understand the legal implications, but I have a problem with the practical effect associated with the decision since the words are so commonly used though out our everyday lives i.e. "In God We Trust."

— Matthew Albano,
Acting Mayor of Westfield
(interview)

"The Pledge of Allegiance is a patriotic salute that brings people of all faiths together to share in the American spirit. I strongly believe that parents, teachers and local schools should encourage children to recite the pledge to start the day, the same way those of us in state Legislature begin our daily business."

"It is rare that President George Bush and Democratic Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle agree on such a contentious issue. I especially like Senator Daschle's quote that this ruling is "just nuts." I think that it is just plain unfortunate."

— Joseph Suliga,
State Senator
(press release statement)

"It is an inaccurate decision, a wrong interpretation of the first amendment; and I will continue to use the "under God" phrase each and every time I pledge allegiance to the flag."

— Tom Kean, Jr., Assemblyman
(interview)

"I was shocked and disappointed by the Court's ruling. I believe the pledge of Allegiance should say 'one nation under God.' I am in support of an Assembly Resolution urging Congress to overturn this decision."

— Linda Stender,
State Assemblywoman
(interview)

"I completely disagree with the court's decision. I expect it to be overturned, if not by the 9th Court of appeal, then the Supreme Court. "God save this honorable court" is how the U.S. Supreme Court begins each session. The decision is not only out of step with the values of the country but it is also out of step with constitutional law."

— Senator Richard Bagger

Judge Beglin Bars Westfield From Closing South Chestnut

By LAUREN S. PASS
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

On Friday, the Borough of Garwood's case against the Town of Westfield was heard in Judge Edward Beglin's courtroom in Elizabeth because the towns were unable to come to an agreement on the closing of South Chestnut Street.

Mayor Gregory McDermott had contacted the Mayor of Garwood, Michael Crincoli, because with Garwood's permission, the Department of Transportation (DOT) would allow the town to close the street for a period of 30 days in order to study the traffic patterns. Garwood denied the request due to an increase in traffic flow near the schools.

Westfield was then denied permission from the DOT to close South Chestnut Street.

This May, the Westfield Town Council passed a resolution to close South Chestnut Street from Fourth Avenue during baseball season, now through October, from 5 to 8 p.m. daily, on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. and on Sundays from 12 p.m. to 7 p.m. during baseball season. Previous to this, the town had been closing that section of South Chestnut Street on Saturdays and Sundays for two years.

Just before the council passed the resolution to close the street a letter was received from Garwood Borough Attorney Robert Renaud on behalf of Mayor Crincoli.

The letter outlined the borough's objections to the closing of South Chestnut Street in Westfield, between the town line and Fourth Avenue, on Monday through Friday evenings, Saturdays and Sundays, during baseball season.

The letter further stated that the council needed permission from the DOT in order to close the road for any length of time and asked the governing body to reconsider and repeal its resolution, stating the borough will take action at its meeting on Tuesday, May 28.

Westfield Town Attorney Robert Cockren explained that the town needed DOT approval if the street was to be closed for a period of more

According to Westfield Town Attorney Robert Cockren, to his knowledge there was no further communication by Garwood with Westfield. "They simply sued us," he said.

Mr. Cockren told The Westfield Leader that he responded to the letter from Garwood and told them that the council considered their letter and that the resolution should stand as adopted.

According to Mr. Cockren, to his knowledge there was no further communication by Garwood with Westfield. "They simply sued us," he said.

Garwood filed its complaint with the court on Thursday, June 20.

The reason behind the closing was a safety concern when the three baseball fields were in use at Gumbert Park. The officials from the Recreation Commission would set up the roadblocks when they felt it was necessary during the set hours, but the road was not always closed.

Mr. Renaud argued that Westfield could not close the road for safety purposes without DOT permission, and that in order to do so, they needed to pass an ordinance, not a resolution.

He said that the law stipulated the 48-hour time frame for such things as block parties and street fairs. He added that if that were not the case, every town that didn't like something in a neighboring town could close off a street of 47 out of 48 hours.

Mr. Renaud stated that Westfield cites fatal pedestrian accidents that have occurred in the town, and none of those streets have been closed. He also said that Orchard Street in Westfield borders a soccer field and that it is not closed during games.

He added that this was part of the "Battle of New Orleans," and that it is the, "last skirmish in the ShopRite battle."

Mr. Cockren said that the road closure was purely for safety reasons and that it was not a mandated closure, but rather an authorization. He did concede that Westfield was not happy with the traffic increase that has occurred since the opening of ShopRite, however, he stated that safety is the real issue and that the council does not want to see a child get killed.

He told Judge Beglin that money was just appropriated for traffic calming concept plans and that rumble strips are already in place.

Judge Beglin stated that South Chestnut Street is the thoroughfare from North Avenue to East Broad Street and that Garwood has a real interest in the thoroughfare. He stated that according to the statute, in order to close the road for safety purposes

Lack of Parking Spaces Creates Quandary For New Construction

By TRACY EVANS
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

Builder Ralph Rapuano faced members of the Westfield Planning Board during a pre-session Concept Hearing Monday evening. His plans, presented by architect Roger Winkle, involve building upon an already existing structure at 430, 500 and 510 Central Avenue.

After presenting initial sketches six months previous to this week's meeting, Mr. Rapuano explained his Italian architectural style inspiration, and his hopes to construct a third floor with stucco finish and an ornate facade. The two larger buildings at the location are to remain intact, while the third smaller building would be demolished.

The main problem with these plans, stressed Chairman Robert Newell, is the size of the building itself, relative to the amount of parking necessitated by the variances.

"The site is too small to support the building," he stated, pointing to the length of columns and walkout windows shown in the drawings. "You need to visually reduce the mass of the building."

Mr. Rapuano responded to the parking situation by referring to previous experience, "the concept of commercial and residential works," urged Mr. Rapuano, citing his efforts at 509 Central Avenue, "The lots were always 40 to 50 percent empty."

His goal for the new project would be to create an upscale apartment building, suitable for tenants over the age of 55 and affording the convenience of walking distance into downtown.

Mr. Newell concluded the concept hearing with a suggestion to reduce the variances, therefore allowing for greater parking space without changing the overall aesthetic idea. His hope is to return to Mr. Rapuano's original blueprints, with a structure that blends more easily with the landscape of the area and is not quite as massive in dimensions.

The parking dilemma persisted in the regularly scheduled Planning Board meeting. B&G Properties appealed for modifying space at 401 West Broad Street, the current location of a beauty salon.

James Watson, a land surveyor and planner with EKA Associates, presented the board with testimony including a detailed study of the parking activity in the area during the peak business hours of 3 to 6 p.m., and all day Saturday.

In response to board member Charles Weidman's concern about the number of employees requiring parking. Testimony was provided by Claudia Cruz, owner of the salon whose estimates complied with the applicant's desire to continue modifications that would reduce parking by four spaces.

Westfield resident Christopher Farella expressed his concern that traffic safety extending toward his Rahway Avenue home would be influenced by the building efforts. He remarked on the existing problem of traffic speed and lack of visibility at the location.

The board moved to approve the appeal, as board member Martin Robbins commended the analysis of the "congested area" and the efforts made by the applicant to investigate the tight parking situation. Action was granted on the condition that the employees of the salon establishment apply for three parking permits from the town.

The final issue discussed on Monday evening was the desire of Stormcrest Limited Partnership to build on a Lenox Avenue vacant lot, across from the post office and to the right of existing office buildings. The structure to be built would utilize the first floor for retail purposes, with residences on both the second and third floors.

Steve Needle, the lot's contract purchaser, hopes to, "change the neighborhood character" by adding this space, with accommodations for two one-bedroom apartments suitable for individuals commuting by

WF Council to Designate Lot 3 As An Area in Need Re-Development

By LAUREN S. PASS
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

The Westfield Town Council met on Tuesday night, after press time.

As of Tuesday at press time, the council was set to move resolutions to demolish garages at 23 Stoneleigh Park and 1407 Boulevard, as well as a single family home at 159 Madison Avenue.

There will be second readings on three ordinances. The first ordinance will grant a property easement and right-of-way near the intersection of Springfield Avenue and Cardinal Drive.

The second ordinance is the public hearing on the new classification of members for Memorial Pool. The ordinance will create an early bird lap swim membership.

The third ordinance will provide the Westfield Fire Department with rapid access key boxes, as well as several other emergency use items.

The council will also move a resolution to designate the South Side Train Station parking lot as an area in need of redevelopment. This is one of the first steps in order for a parking deck to be built.

The town will also be appointing a custodian of records for the Police Department in accordance with the new public information act, which goes into effect on Saturday, July 8.

Residents of West Broad Street are expected to be in attendance at the meeting to discuss the placement of the fence bordering their properties and Memorial Pool.

Several residents are also expected to be in attendance to discuss the newly installed speed humps on Rahway Avenue.

Officers of the Westfield Police Department are expected to be in attendance, as the Policemen's Benevolent Association contract negotiations have not been settled with the town.

A full article on the meeting will be in the June 11 edition of The Westfield Leader.

Lack of Parking Creates Quandary for Construction

the town's train station.

His attorney, Charles Brandt, requested three variances for the project, the first two dealing with expanding the property line to allow for a rear yard and side alleyway. Of primary concern was the final variance, dealing with a reduction in required parking spaces.

Again, evidence supporting the proposed deficit in parking spaces was provided, compiled at the hours of 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. A diagram of the parking survey was provided by, professional engineer Edward Deck.

Mr. Brandt proceeded to make a case for a need for only five spaces, two belonging to the residences above the retail spot. In addition, the applicant cited the cooperation of neighboring businesses, including Coldwell Banker, in allowing their spaces to be used in the evening hours.

Mr. Robbins' response to the photographs was that they must have been taken on unusually quiet days, as he insisted that the parking in town remains a problem.

James was a member of the Gay-Straight Alliance and played on the golf team. He will attend Manhattan College in New York.

"There is a measured deficiency of parking downtown, by roughly four hundred spaces," added Mr. Weidman.

Desire to develop the land won out at the end of the session, with Town Engineer Kenneth Marsh commenting that the lot, "has been an eyesore for a long time."

Mr. Newell saw the impending structure as an asset that should maintain the residential character of the area. He stressed the approval's condition that all employees of the building obtain parking permits from the town.

Also passed all pending applications from May 6, including structures on 529 Edgar Road, 592 Springfield Avenue, and 118 Vernon Terrace.

Absent from the meeting were Councilman Rafael Betancourt, and Board members Jay Boyles and Jay McDonald.

Judge Beglin Bars Closure Of South Chestnut Street

Westfield needed to pass an ordinance and then receive permission from the Chairman of the DOT.

He said that the law included the wording for closure by resolution because it also applies to county government, who passes ruling by resolution, where municipalities pass by ordinance.

Judge Beglin declared the resolution, "null and void," adding that it cannot be implemented and is unenforceable.

South Chestnut Street residents have complained not only of increased traffic, but also congestion caused on the street due to overflow parking for the ShopRite.

According to Town Administrator James Gildea the idea of closing South Chestnut Street and extending the park across were discussed by the Recreation Commission over three years ago, but the idea was never followed through on. One idea that is currently being discussed is changing South Chestnut to a one-way road.

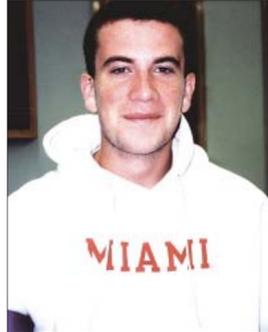

Traffic calming measures for the entire "ShopRite grid" are currently in the works.
