SP Residents Told to Ask State Reps. About Taxes

By FRED ROSSI
Specially Written for The Times

The Scotch Plains government last week moved another step forward in developing about three acres of township-owned land on Plainfield Avenue into athletic fields when it approved an ordinance changing the designation of the property from "B-1" (business) to "P" (public).

In April, the Township Planning Board voted unanimously to support the township's plan for developing the 2.8-acre site; it's expected that work will begin later this year.

At its meeting last week, the council also received the results of its annual municipal audit for 2001, and Deputy Mayor Frank Rossi called it, "an excellent review." He credited Township Manager Thomas Atkins and Township Finance Director Lori Majeski for their efforts at keeping the local financial house in order, especially in the wake of the April 2001 arrest and subsequent conviction of former Township Treasurer William Polidore on embezzlement charges.

In addition, the council, for the second consecutive year, passed a resolution backing the convening of a state constitutional convention to address reforming the property tax structure in New Jersey. Saying that, "the time has come," Councilwoman Paulette Coronato said that, "New Jersey residents cannot stand this onerous tax any longer. There have been plenty of tax relief programs over the years, but that is not the solution."

Residents are being urged to contact their local state legislators, State Senator Jack Suliga and Assembly members Jerry Green and Linda Stender, and ask them to support twin bills in the Senate (S-478) and Assembly (A-540) that would require a ballot referendum in November on the question of whether a constitutional convention should be held next year.

Early in its meeting last week, Fire Department Chief Jonathan Ellis presented awards to about 20 local firefighters for exemplary service in 2000-2001. An also recognized several others for their continuing education efforts. The department's chaplain, Reverend Donald Hummel, was also presented with his own firefighter's helmet.

The council also passed a resolution congratulating Jonathan Lorenzini on having achieved the rank of Eagle Scout in the Boy Scouts of America.

The council's next meeting will be held on June 11, and the council is asking residents wishing to speak about the proposed underage drinking ordinance to be present that evening so their views can be heard. Last week, 11 residents expressed their opinions to the council about the issue.

Highland Swim Club Members Celebrate Golden Anniversary

By DEBORAH MADISON
Specially Written for The Times

After a half of a century filled with belly-flop contests and lap swimming, The Highland Swim Club celebrated its 50th anniversary as a Scotch Plains recreational haven with a brunch on Saturday, June 1.

Members enjoyed bagels and coffee, while a few of the club's die-hard swimming enthusiasts braved the chilly waters of early June.

Also to fete their anniversary, the organization repainted and restored its life-sized mural that wraps around the walls of the bathhouse.

Fanwood resident and art teacher, Trish Healey, designed the new mural and oversaw more than a dozen artist's apprentices of all ages. Once completed, the mural will be an underwater scene of sharks, in honor of the club's swim team.

The Highland Swim Club boasts the only undefeated swim team in the Union County Outdoor Swim League (UCOSL). Entering their 24th season, the Sharks remain undefeated by the other teams in UCOSL, which include the swim teams of Westfield Memorial Pool, Willow Grove in Scotch Plains, Nomenegon Swim Club in Westfield and the Cranford Swim Club.

The club's Vice President Gail

Former Jersey City Mayor Schundler Discusses Plans For His 'Empower The People' Website

By DEBORAH MADISON
Specially Written for The Times

Prior Westfield resident, ex-Mayor of Jersey City, gubernatorial candidate and Westfield High School football star, Brett Schundler gave an exclusive interview to The Times of Scotch Plains-Fanwood last week to discuss his future plans and career goals.

After taking a much-needed hiatus from political life to spend time with his family, Mr. Schundler said that he plans on resuming his commitment to social action in the fall.

This September, Mr. Schundler will be a visiting fellow at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government, teaching civics and urban studies. His classes will cover such issues as how to save American cities, ways to approach problems and how to get taxes under control, he told The Times.

He also plans to activate the "Empower the People" website, which, Mr. Schundler said, he envisions as, "a think-tank for analyzing and evaluating state policies and proposals."

Akin to the Heritage Foundation, a national think-tank engaged in research on federal government proposals, Empower the People's website will provide citizens and the media with, "research and analysis, evaluating major issues in New Jersey and their impact on the average citizen," Mr. Schundler explained.

In addition to sharing information with the public, the second goal of this project will be to, "try to advance good policies and to block bad ones," he added.

"Citizens must organize at the grassroots level in order to have as much pull as the powerful lobbyists do," he said.

Mr. Schundler said that he believes that large numbers of citizens can have a very profound effect on public policy by actively participating in the political process, but they must get more involved.

"I believe that calls to legislators have a tremendous influence on their decision-making process," he said. "Lobbyists and organized interest groups know this."

"Campaign donations by lobbyists only represent money to buy advertising for more votes," Mr. Schundler opined. "Large numbers of citizens have as important an impact," he stated. "I want to mobilize and organize people around good policies," he said. "People must become more engaged in the process for democracy to work."

When asked what policies he will continue to promote, Mr. Schundler said that relieving New Jersey's tax burden was high on the list, along with giving people freedom of school choice. Mr. Schundler has been a long-time advocate of the school voucher proposal.

"School choice is not abandoning public schools, but rather making them accountable. It works in the same way that free enterprise does. Individuals should have the freedom of choice to do what they think is best for their children and government should empower individuals with those choices," he said.

"New Jersey citizens should also be very suspect of a Governor who claims to have a huge budget deficit, but wants tax-payers to fund a colossal stadium," Mr. Schundler commented. "That makes no sense."

"I hope in the years to come, people will take more responsibility to get actively involved in politics and to learn about the real issues, not just the advertisement hype that is paid for by various candidates," Mr. Schundler said. "We must educate ourselves and not rely on just television for information."

Mr. Schundler also expressed that he will always have a warm spot in his heart for Westfield, where he loved growing up. "It's a great community," he said.

Voter Turnouts Low; Forrester Gets Nod

By LAUREN S. PASS
Specially Written for The Times

Voter turnouts were low throughout the state for Tuesday's primary. The local area produced the same results, with 1,372 voters in Westfield, 901 in Scotch Plains, 415 in Mountainside and 408 in Fanwood.

Due to the heated race for the Republican nomination for Senate, Republicans turned out in significantly higher numbers than Democrats in the area.

Millionaire businessman Douglas Forrester, who won the state's primary bid for Senate against Diane Allen and John Matheussen, and will face incumbent democrat Robert Torricelli in the November election, also won the primary in the area.

Mr. Forrester received 250 votes in Mountainside, 341 in Scotch Plains, 625 in Westfield, and 150 tallies in Fanwood.

Incumbent Democrats Nicholas Scutari, Angel Estrada and Rick Proctor won the race against the three independent democrats; Carole Cascio, George O'Grady and Becky

SP Underage Drinking Ordinance Is Reviewed

By JEREMY LIPSTEIN
Specially Written for The Times

Last Tuesday, the Scotch Plains Township Council held a public hearing allowing community members to voice their opinions on the proposed underage drinking ordinance.

The law, as it currently stands, without the ordinance, bans minors from being served alcohol in a bar or restaurant, drinking in public, and purchasing alcohol. The law does not stop minors from drinking in a private residence.

In June 2000, the state legislature passed a piece of legislation enabling municipalities to enact underage drinking ordinances. The enabling legislature gives municipalities the power to make underage drinking illegal, with the exception for a religious ceremony or with consent of a parent, guardian or relative above the age of 21.

The ordinance that the Township of Scotch Plains has open for discussion would only permit underage drinking in a religious ceremony or under the direct supervision of the parent, guardian or relative above the age of 21. This ordinance would prevent adults not directly related to the minor from giving them alcohol. Penalties for underage drinking can range from a fine up to $350 to loss or postponement of driving privileges.

Almost all who take this ordinance into consideration are against underage drinking, but many in the community feel uncomfortable about the ordinance, saying that it violates the Fourth Amendment of the United States Constitution. This is a common misconception about the ordinance. Police would only be allowed to enter a private residence if they have probable cause of a violation of the ordinance and in most instances, possess a warrant.

Some may say that the police have

SPFHS Alumni Association Announces Scholarship Recipients, Holds Meeting

SCOTCH PLAINS - During the May meeting of the Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School (SPFHS) Alumni Association, Laura DiFrancesco Swidersky welcomed members, as well as scholarship winners and their parents. Reiterating the goals of the association, Ms. Swidersky stated that members strive to carry out plans and program events which will ultimately benefit SPFHS, its administration and students. She also urged attendees to encourage graduates residing in the community and surrounding area to become active in the group.

Seven $1,000 scholarships were awarded at the meeting. Alia Shaalan, the daughter of Mary Ann DeFeo (Class of 1970) and Kimberly Perryman, daughter of Chris Perryman (Class of 1974) and Pattie Burns (Class of 1973) were the recipients of the association's scholarships. Alia will attend Monmouth University in the fall, while Kimberly plans to attend the Muhlenberg School of Nursing. Both students were involved in volunteer activities, as well as student groups at SPFHS. The next five scholarships were provided by the SPFHS Class of 1951 through the donations of class members under the coordination of Paul Schwehm. Laura O'Neil, the daughter of Joe O'Neil (Class of 1972), hopes to study business at Kutztown University, with the aim to pursue a law degree after graduation from Kutztown. A member of the swim team, Laura was also active in the French Choir, Future Business Leaders of America, and other activities. Brian Schiller, the grandson of Eugene Schiller (Class of 1950) and Yolanda DiQuollo Schiller (Class of 1951), is a scholar-athlete. Brian will attend The College of the Holy Cross in Worcester, Mass.

In addition to being captain of the football team, he was named offensive player of the year and made the second team of the Union County Football Team. Brian spent his summertime as a laborer, law office clerk, and is known for his commitment to sports and studies.

Matthew Schiablé's grandfather is Art Brunner (Class of 1951). He hopes to become a math teacher while attending Rutgers. Active in soccer, Matthew played in the Moonglowers band. He runs his own landscaping business, snow removal and bookkeeping.

Nicole Bowman, the daughter of William Bowman (Class of 1981), hopes to major in social work at Kean University. She was head captain of the Color Guard and dealt with routines, formations and squad problems. She is presently creating a CD depicting works of Muse, Las Contadores, showing interest in the humanities. She will be the first member of her family to attend college.

Ryan Crawford is the son of Mary Drum (Class of 1980). He holds an excellent record in Advanced Placement courses and will attend Trinity College in Connecticut. The founder and president of the Student Movement Against Cancer, Ryan is a forerunner for chapters throughout the area. He is also president of the American Cancer Society for Teens, and has served as Editor-in-Chief and Opinion Editor for the school newspaper.

Robert Carboy, Chairman of the Scholarship Committee, introduced each recipient and gave the criteria for each student which was the deciding factor in awarding the grants.

Election of officers for the coming year was held, with Victor DiFrancesco announcing the incoming slate of officers who will be installed at the September meeting of the association.

Highland Swim Club

Miller, a Fanwood resident, attributes the team's incredible success to their coach of 24 years, Bill Reichele.

"He really brings out the best in each child," said Mrs. Miller. "And he has excellent assistant coaches, many of whom were on his swim team when they were younger," she added.

One of the interesting features of the club's layout allows the swim team to gather atop the roof of the bathhouse overlooking the pool to cheer for their team members during competitions. The grounds also contain a shady wooded picnic area called the Grove, which is surrounded by many large trees.

According to Club President, Craig Guiffre, the club was founded by several Westfield residents in 1954, and still retains a few of the original, founding members. Mr. Guiffre is a Scotch Plains resident and is serving his third year as president.

"And many of our members are the descendants of the original founding families," Mr. Guiffre added.

When the pool first opened, it was the subject of a feature article in Family Circle magazine as a model for an ideal private swim club. The founding members of the pool picked the name "Highland" because of their fondness for the Scottish history of the area, the Family Circle article explained. At that time, the area surrounding the club was nothing but woods, said Mrs. Miller.

Although it is a private club, membership registration is open to the public and the club's rosters include members from Scotch Plains and many of the surrounding towns. The membership capacity is 300 families and they are close to their full capacity, but have room for a few more families, Mrs. Miller told The Times of Scotch Plains-Fanwood.

Club Manager, Chris Moffet, has been a fifth grade teacher at Coles Elementary School in Scotch Plains for eight years.

"The kids who know Mr. Moffet as a teacher get a real kick out of seeing him here in the summer," Mrs. Miller commented.

A teen night, which is alternately hosted by Willow Grove Swim Club and the Annual Pool Championship, offers relays and awards for the silliest and biggest belly flops.
