Gildea said the town does have a Fair Share Plan. "It outlines how the town plans to move forward with their vision of the state's long-term care system. The fair share fines are intended to support the state's efforts to move forward with their vision of the state's long-term care system."

 vtk "...is critical to serve as an advocate on the issues of Medicaid and their policy and the people they serve. This experience has enabled me to develop and grow into strong advocates for the home care and hospice industry. I have served on the board as an advocate for the state and have represented home care and hospice interests in New Jersey for the past 12 years."

Barcode of the Law, a national leader and advocate for the Home Care Association of New Jersey, says that the current advocacy efforts in support of legislative changes will benefit all New Jersey residents, regardless of income. "It's important to work together on these efforts to ensure that more people have access to the care they need, and the state continues to support the home care and hospice industry," said the group.
